Prilgims no Longer.

Probably nothing has ever been recorded in the annals of this country so touching as the death and burial of Parke Valentine and his young wife, two of the victims of the Spuyter Duvril disaster. But a day before this horrible event these two young and loving hearts had been united in the holy bonds of wedlock.
They had just entered upon their wedding tour; were to all appearances riding along upon the swift wheels of the iron horse to the happy culmination of that sweet dream—the honeymoon. But the hand of fate had been spread and death was waiting with open arms to claim its own. No warning cry was there to give timely notice of the call. In the midst of life's happiest period the two were rushed into eternity. All that was mortal of the two was placed in a neat box, side by side, and shipped to Bennington, Vt., whither they were wending their way at the time of the accident.

On the sixteenth, inst., a dense concourse of relatives, friends and sympathizing citizens attended the funeral at the Second Congregational church in that city.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers. A huge floral pillow, with the words "Rest in Peace," wrought in immortelles, rested upon the head of the casket, while a column of unsurpassed beauty occupied a position at the foot of the casket. The remains were enclosed in one of those handsome black-cloth bound caskets, surmounted by massive silver mouldings. Rev. E. G. Reed, Mr. Vallen-tine's pastor, officiated, being assisted by Rev. J. B. Wasson, of North Adams, Mass., and Rev. Dr. Canfield. Thus it was that the same clergyman who performed the marriage ceremony conducted the funeral service, and all that remained of the once happy pair was consigned to mother earth.

Four of the eight bearers were ushers at the wedding. Among the many present were the Park Guard, the Bennington social club, the Alumni of the Bennington high school, all of which Mr. Valentine was a member. The parents of Mrs. Valentine were also present. The community wears an air of gloom; everything is hushed and silent, as though Bennington were the "city of the dead."

—We clip the following from The Progress, published at Independence, Mo., as a matter of interest to the many friends of the Rev. Mr. R. R. Pierce in this section:
"The decorations of the audience room of the M. E. church on Christmas day, were very elaborate and elegant, reflecting a high order of artistic taste upon the part of Rev.
R. R. Pierce, and his lady parishioners who assisted him. We recognize in Mr. Pierce a most exemplary christian gentleman, a close thinker and a public orator of superior ability. In the cultivation of music he is accomplishing much good in causing an additional interest to his church services, and in the encouragement of tasteful decorations present a most commendable emulation in making his place of worship pleasant and attractive. Under the care of Mr. Pierce the M. E. church is now in a flourishing condition and accomplishing much good in our city.

THE ASSASSIN'S SPEECH.

Guiteau Delivers It Sitting Down, but not Because He is Afraid.

The Prosecution Pretend that I am Wicked;

The Defense Says that I am a Lunatic;

And So I was on July Second.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Upon entering the court room this morning Guiteau took his seat in the witness box, remarking as he laid out his papers: "I sit down because I can speak better, not that I am afraid of being shot. This shooting business is getting played out."

At an intimation from Judge Cox, the prisoner carefully arranged his glasses, and with a flourish began to read from his manuscript as follows:
"The prosecution pretend that I am a wicked man. Mr. Seville and the rest think that I am a lunatic, and I presume you think I am. I certainly was a lunatic July 2nd when I fired on the president, and the American people generally, and I presume you think I was. Can you imagine anything more insane than my going to that depot and shooting the president of the United States. You are here to say whether I was sane or insane at the moment I fired that shot. You have nothing to do with my condition before or since that shot was fired. You must say by your verdict whether I was sane or insane at the moment the shot was fired. If you have any doubt of my sanity at the moment, you must give me the benefit of that doubt, and acquit; that is, if you have any doubt whether I fired that shot, or was the agent of the Deity. If I fired it on my own account, I was sane. If I fired it, supposing myself agent of the Deity, I was insane, and you must acquit. This is the law, as given in a recent decision of the New York court of appeals. It revolutionizes old rules, and is a grand step forward in the law of insanity. It is worthy of this age of railroads, electricity and telephones, and it welcomes from the progressive state of New York. I have no hesitation in saying that it is special providence in my favor, and I ask this court and jury to consider it.

Some eminent people in America think me the greatest man of this age, and this feeling is growing. They believe in my inspiration, and that Providence and I have really saved the nation from another war. My speech setting forth in detail my defense was telegraphed to all the leading papers and published Monday morning and now I am permitted by his honor to deliver it to you."

Train Wrecked.

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 21.—A collision occurred this morning, about twenty-seven miles from here on the Charleston & Savannah railroad, between a passenger train bound for Jacksonville and one bound hither.
H. A. Fox, mail agent, was killed and a colored fireman is missing.
There are no further particulars to the supposed number of persons injured.

Well Attended.

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 21.—The funeral of ex-Governor Bullock took place this morning, and was attended by a very large body of representative men of the state and city, and citizens generally.

Fire in Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 21.—A fire broke out this morning in the five-story candy and cracker factory of J. E. Block. Owing to the lack of water, the flames gained rapid headway, and soon spread to all adjoining stroyed, and the losses on stock and buildings aggregate half a million dollars. The principal loser is Joseph Brown, who owned the building.

Loss, $38,000; insurance, $20,000.

building, lost $20,000; insurance,
